"Mother Shipton" Saw Air-Crafts in Vision Five Centuries Back

"There is nothing new under the sun," may be a true saying after all. Some people have always thought so. There is the jaded young cynic of 21—he of the unruffled demeanor, the patient smile, the inevitable cigarette, and the collar correct to the fraction of an inch, and there is the world-weary maiden of 19 or 20, supercilious, bored, who doesn't know just what to do because she has so many nice things to choose. "I have done it all so many times," she complains with lifted narrow brows, delicately patting her perfectly coiffed henna hair. "There is nothing new to do." The book goes bang against the wall, she petulantly thrusts the rose and gold cushion and stretches out on the tapestried divan, hitting questioningly into another chaise longue.

Probably in 1485 people thought the same thing. There were no enamelled cigarette holders then. There probably were not very many chocolates! But the eldest son was heard to remark to his companion, "Isn't it stupid—nothing new to do?" But there was one woman back in those days, who believed, whatever she thought about that time, that in the future there would be many new things. "Mother Shipton" was her name, and it was whispered about that she was a witch. The children would make wide detours around her house, which no one liked to pass by after dark. Strange lights and shadows could be seen dancing about and weird sounds issued forth. Yes, Mother Shipton was a witch, a person to be feared and held in awe. She was hideously ugly with her unkempt hair, her thin bony hands, brown and wrinkled, her features bold and distorted. Perhaps she had even sold her soul to the devil! But old Mother Shipton went her way, paying no attention to the gossips and idlers who would make her life miserable. She dreamed and she thought and she had strange visions about the future.

In an old magazine found in the attic of one of the old homes in Columbia are found these lines written by her before scarcely any inventions or discoveries had been made. The lines first appeared in 1485 and were reprinted many years later in this magazine. These are the things Mother Shipton saw in her visions:

"Carriages without horses shall go, And accidents fill the world with woe. Around the world thought shall fly In the twinkling of an eye. Waters shall yet more wonders do, Now strange, shall yet be true. The world upside down shall be, And gold be found at root of tree. Through hills man shall ride, And no horse or ass be at his side. Under water man shall walk, Shall ride, shall sleep, shall talk. In the air men shall be seen, In white, in black, in green. Iron in the water shall float, As easy as a wooden boat. Gold shall be found 'mid stones In a land that's now unknown. Fire and water shall wonders do, England shall at last admit a Jew. And this world to an end shall come In eighteen hundred and eighty one."

So today if Mother Shipton were alive she would express little wonder and consternation about submarines and airships. She saw it long ago as she brewed her broth of lizards' eyes, cats' tongues and snakes' skins. Her only surprise would be to find the earth and its inhabitants still here judging from the pessimistic tone of her remarkable prophecy.

FAIR GROUNDS ENLARGED

300 Additional Acres Make It One of the Largest in Country. Missouri now has one of the largest fair grounds in the United States, according to Dean F. B. Mumford of the College of Agriculture, who reports that the State Fair Board recently acquired 300 acres of additional land adjoining the State Fair Grounds. Dean Mumford returned Tuesday from Sedalia where he attended a meeting of the Board of directors of the Missouri State Fair Association, of which he is a member.

The board planned for the erection of a swine pavilion large enough for 2000 animals, with a new one-half mile trotting track in addition to the old one mile track. Plans were also made for rebuilding the grandstand, enlarging its capacity and improving it.

A. C. Dingle of Moberly is chairman of the board of directors, and E. G. Bylander of Sedalia is secretary. Members of the State Fair Association are: Joseph Lovegreen, LaBelle; W. M. Milligan, Richmond; C. D. Bellows, Maryville; Chase Henthorn, Buckner; J. C. Wingfield, Windsor; George W. Arnold, Sedalia; W. A. Dallmeyer, Jefferson City; Carroll Wisdon, Bowling Green; C. J. Harwood, Webster Groves; Martin J. Hyland and W. E. Leach, St. Louis; E. E. Swink, Farmington; F. A. Young, Alton; and L. Gibson Adams, Hoberg.

WOMEN'S SOCIETY VOTES $3,000 FOR NEW CHURCH. This is in addition to $1,000 pledged toward new Methodist Women's Dormitory. The Woman's Missionary Society of the Broadway Methodist Church at its all-day meeting yesterday voted to give $3,000 toward the $100,000 to be raised in Columbia and Boone County for the proposed new $400,000 church plant. This amount for the church building was voted in addition to the $1,000 they voted to give toward the $100,000 dormitory for Methodist women.

TWO BUSINESS BLOCKS BURN. Fire Starts in Furniture Store—Loss Estimated at $1,000,000. PAUL, Tex., Oct. 15.—Fire that started in a furniture store here at 10 o'clock last night was brought under control early today after having destroyed two business blocks on the northwest corner of the city square and seventeen homes in the residence section. A conservative estimate placed the loss at $1,000,000.

How Did They Do It?

Do you ever wonder how the ancient folk got along without the comforts and conveniences of today? Without window-glass, without tooth brushes, without automobiles, without soap, without telephones, breakfast foods, stoves, and virtually all the items we consider bare necessities of life.

And have you ever wondered at the part advertising has played in the world's development? It has made and is making the world better housed, better fed, better dressed. It has increased the world's capacity for things that elevate, improve and idealize the important business of living. It is a big, vital force in fostering convenient and comfortable life.

Home! Can you imagine your own empty of advertised products?

Advertising is an authentic and essential guide to the markets of the world. Without its direction you lose much, and overlook much.

Don't fail to read the advertisements you find in this newspaper. Follow their guidance.

They will prove invaluable to you
